Convicted in 2004 attack

A West Sacramento man was convicted on Friday of rape and burglary, in charges relating to a local crime in 2004.

A Yolo County jury convicted Robert Whistler, Jr., of returning to a party at the victim's West Sacramento house at 4:30 a.m. on Oct. 2, 2004, and raping the woman while she slept in her bedroom. During the trial, the jury also heard testimony from the suspect's ex-girlfriend, who reported that Whistler had raped her at her Sacramento apartment two days later. That alleged crime was not prosecuted in Sacramento.

Physical evidence from the West Sacramento crime provided DNA from Whistler. The state Department of Justice later matched the DNA to a saliva sample taken from the neck of the victim of another rape in West Sacramento in 2003. The victim in this case suffered injuries "consistent" with rape, according to a nurse's testimony, but was too intoxicated at the time to be able to later identify the suspect, said the Yolo County District Attorney's office. Whistler was acquitted of the charges in this case.

The charges in the 2004 case resulted in two pending probation violations for Whistler, who had prior convictions for domestic violence and battery on a probation officer.

Sentencing is set for June 25 and Whistler could receive more than nine years in state prison on charges of burglary and rape, said the D.A.'s office.

Making sure a pound's a pound

County workers move 1,000-pound iron weights used to test large scales

By Beth Gabor, Yolo County Public Information Officer
& Kimberly Bellows, U.C. Davis Intern

The next time you purchase gas, look at your pump and you'll see a seal with Rick Landon's signature. Rick Landon is Yolo County's Agricultural Commissioner and Sealer of Weights & Measures. His signature tells you the gas pump has been tested and approved by his department, ensuring you receive quality gas, and in the correct quantity. At $4.00 per gallon this assurance is important! In fact, under the the department tests every weighing and measuring device in the county, and they inspect raw and packaged commodities. The department does this to protect consumers and create equity in the marketplace. Truck scales, gas meters, grocery store scanners and ambulance odometers are all among the devices that the county inspects for quality and quantity purposes.

Another aspect of the market place that the department regulates is produce under the Fruit, Nut and Vegetable Standardization program. They have certain minimum requirements for these items in the marketplace, and if a complaint is made, the department visits the store to investigate. There is also a melon program in which an inspector goes out to fields to inspect growing melons for quality purposes. Finally, the department has a Farmer's Market program, which certifies producers and the markets themselves, since all products being sold must be produced by the seller.

The department is one of only three counties in the state that is an organic farm certifier, and it contracts for the county's pest management services.

Cabaldon's rival aims to promote fairness, justice

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Mariko Yamada leaves no secret where her heart lies – it's in the realm of social service, and her heart likes to stick up for those who can't necessarily protect themselves.

"My interest is in advocating for those that don't have a voice," she told the News-Ledger in an interview earlier this month. "There are plenty of people to advocate for the rich and powerful. What I am seeking to do is bring some fairness and justice."

Yamada is a Yolo County supervisor from Davis. She has a resume highlighted by work in social service agencies and the Department of Commerce's Office of Civil Rights ("I was fighting sexual harassment issues before Anita Hill gave that a name"). And she believes she is in a "dead heat" with West Sacramento mayor Christopher Cabaldon going into next week's Democratic primary. The two are battling it out for the party nomination for the 8th District seat in the State Assembly – and the winner of the Democratic nomination will likely have the inside track to win state office in this Democratic-leaning district.

Yamada was born in 1950 in inner-city Denver, to Japanese-American parents who had been interned during World War II. She was the first in her family to graduate from college, and has worked in the "undercount reduction program" for the U.S. Census and in San Diego County's Department of Social Services. She got into Yolo County Government when then-Supervisor David Rosenberg asked her to be his chief of staff. When Rosenberg (now a Yolo judge) started working for Governor Gray Davis, Yamada started filling in for him – and was appointed to the board seat herself in 2003.

She and her husband have two daughters – one in college, the other a recent graduate. Said Yamada of her decision to run for Assembly:

"You do what you're called to do. It's just as important to know when to step up as when to step away. I'm a social worker first. My principles do not always align with the political world, but I sleep well at night."

Yamada seeks to use government to help serve people.

"Our mission is to work on behalf of those who are vulnerable, who live in poverty and would otherwise not have a voice. You need to empower these people to take control of their own lives. Some people say I'm anti-business. But social workers understand, too, that a thriving business community means people can have jobs."

MARIKO YAMADA
Candidate for Assembly

In state government, Yamada hopes to "close some of the tax loopholes for the wealthiest Americans, like the yacht tax." And she says Californians will have to make choices as the state faces budget problems.

"We have to say to the taxpayer, what are the core services you want, and what are you going to pay for?" she stated. "Democrats are considered 'tax and spend,' but Republicans are 'borrow and spend.' People are tired of the parties' bickering."

What does Yamada think West Sacramento wants from its Assembly representative?

"Certainly, I think the issue of flood control and water conservation, as far as its role in the Delta, is going to be a continuing issue," she said.

And Yamada opposes putting more homes in flooded areas – as she said West Sacramento's leaders, including Cabaldon, just did in approving the Yarbrough subdivision.

She gave another example of building in a flood-prone area: Yamada was on the losing end of a Yolo Board of Supervisors vote that allowed a housing project at the Old Sugar Mill in Clarksburg.

"I think it's unconscionable to build new residential behind an uncertified levee," said Yamada. "With all due respect to the people of Clarksburg, where it's an economic issue and housing issue, to me it's a policy issue. 'It not only puts the residents at risk, but it puts our public safety people at risk as well. When the levees break, people have to be rescued.'"

Yamada's list of endorsements is heavy with labor groups representing teachers, nurses, construction professionals and other groups. She said her campaign war chest was "approaching $300,000" earlier this month, which still lagged behind Cabaldon's, but she added that the race is still too close to call.

And much of the campaigning in the race is being done by "proxy" – groups that support either candidate are sending out campaign material "independently" from Yamada and Cabaldon.

I-5 closure: how bad will local traffic be?

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

How bad will it be when Caltrans closes down half of I-5 for over a week at a time? How much longer will it take you to drive to Sacramento? How much "foreign" traffic will spill over onto West Sacramento streets such as Sacramento Avenue or Jefferson Boulevard, as commuters from other areas look for creative ways around the freeway closure?

The short answer is, "we'll soon find out."

Caltrans and the cities and counties surrounding the stretch of I-5 in downtown Sacramento are all working hard to warn commuters and brace for traffic when lanes on I-5 are closed down.

"We have a team of a supervisor and four officers, and up to four parking officers to work traffic issues," said Henry Serrano, Deputy Chief of Police for West Sacramento. "We can't control the number of cars, but we can control the way people drive, and whether they are creating a hazard. Roads are only built to handle so many cars."

Also in West Sacramento's

arsenal will be a number of roadside message boards.

"We'll have about 10 of those around town, and the messages can be changed if the situation at various intersections changes," said Serrano.

To repair the "Boat Section" of I-5 in Sacramento, Caltrans will close all lanes of the freeway northbound between U.S. 50 and Richards Boulevard from this Friday evening to June 9, and again from June 26 to July 1.

All southbound lanes of the freeway will be closed from June 13-23 and from July 8-13.

Since the interstate spans the entire U.S. West Coast and also serves area commuters, "traffic will be a challenge," says Caltrans.

"Primarily the concern is that you're taking out a major traffic artery in the region, even along the entire coast," said Serrano. "The concern is really focused on commute hours. We've been working very closely with Caltrans the past few months to prepare."

The impacts will probably be different for the northbound closure dates than for the southbound closure dates, as the region's commuters look for new ways to get where they're going. Many of those commuters may choose to enter downtown Sacramento through West Sacramento – using the I Street Bridge, Tower Bridge or the Pioneer Bridge carrying U.S. 50.

"For example, during the northbound closure, if people from the Elk Grove area decide to use the Freeport river crossing and come up Jefferson Boulevard (in West Sacramento), it could impact Jefferson. And we could see traffic from 80 jumping off at Jefferson and Harbor trying to come across the Tower or I Street bridges," said Serrano.

"And in a southbound closure, we could see a pattern where people are coming in on I-80 (from Natomas) and going to U.S. 50 (west), or dropping off at Reed Avenue, West Capitol or Jefferson," he added. "It's really hard to predict which routes people will use because if they try one route one day and it doesn't work well, they will try something else the next day."

Regardless, West Sacramentans – whether trying to commute across the river, or just trying to get around their own town during commute hours – may see the northbound and southbound closure dates each bring different traffic situations.

"People should really be planning extra time to commute, even if they work in town, until they see the patterns develop," said Serrano. "We've done extensive planning. It's like a major storm – you take your best guess as to how bad it will be, and then go from there. We're responding on the 'robust' side of things, instead of just saying 'well, we'll see what happens.'"

West Sacramento, like some other local jurisdictions, will try to recover its "direct" costs associated with controlling traffic during the I-5 repairs.

Authorities are urging people to telecommute, use mass transit and avoid driving on unnecessary errands during commute hours in the morning and afternoon when the closures are in effect.

For those who must get behind the wheel:

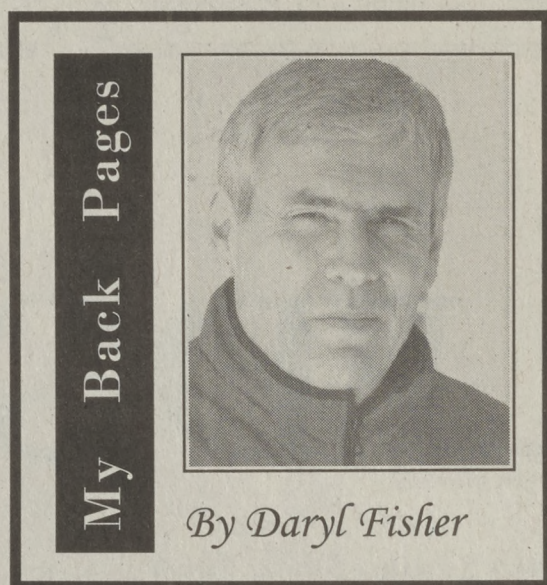

"People just have to pack a lot of patience in their lunch," said Serrano.

Memorial Day: a time to remember the sacrifices

As I write this, it's Memorial Day, and it was nice to see so many American flags floating gently in the breeze on my way over to the office. And as I pulled out of my driveway, in front of my next door neighbor's house, was not only a large American flag, but also the official Marine Corps flag, flying proudly side-by-side, which has been the case every Memorial Day since I moved in next door to Bill Tyler more than 20 years ago.

As many of you know, West Sacramento is the home of two fine Veterans of Foreign Wars posts and there are hundreds (there used to be thousands) of men and women living here who belong to the Greatest Generation, and Bill is one of them. And with the passing of yet another Memorial Day, I think I will use this space to reprint part of an interview I did with Bill a number of years ago, in memory of all those who have served their country with the same kind of dedication and courage that he did more than 65 years ago:

Many years ago a friend of mine gave me a World War II book entitled "Hell on the Normandy Beaches" about history's largest military amphibious assault. It introduced me to the incredible human sacrifice which took place on the Normandy beaches code-named Utah, Gold, Juno, Sword and Omaha. Among the words inside the book were these, penned by Ernie Pyle, the famous WWII war correspondent: "By the time we got to the beaches the fighting had moved a couple of miles inland. All that was left was the overturned boats and shell-shattered jeeps and sad little personal belongings that were strewn all over those bitter sands. That plus the bodies of American soldiers lying in rows covered with blankets. There was also strewn personal gear, gear that would never be needed again by those who fought and died to give us our entrance into Europe. There were sewing kits, diaries, Bibles, letters from loved ones, toothbrushes and razors, water-soaked packs of cigarettes and snapshots of families back home. It seemed to me a pure miracle that we ever took those beaches at all. In the sector where I landed, our troops faced such odds that our getting ashore was like me whipping Joe Louis down to a pulp."

While the mighty struggles of D-Day were going on in the summer of 1944 in the Atlantic Theater of war, there were tens of thousands of just as determined American soldiers who had already given their lives in the Pacific Theater in similar landings. On faraway little Pacific islands with names like Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Saipan and Tinian, American Marines had invaded Japanese-held islands and seen some of the bloodiest fighting of the war. And one of those very proud Marines who fought in each of the above mentioned battles is my next door neighbor, W. W. "Bill" Tyler.

Bill was born in 1921 and grew up on his family's farm in Colorado. He was just 20 years old when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor and like most of the men of his generation, he was eager to get into the fight.

"A bunch of us were out on the town one night and I told everyone I had decided to join the Marines," recalled Bill. "A couple of the other guys wanted to join, too, but for one reason or another they didn't make it. I did my basic training in San Diego where they made me a machine gunner and before I knew it I was on my way to the South Pacific."

After about six more months of training Bill suddenly found himself right in the middle of some of the bloodiest fighting in World War II.

"We helped secure Guadalcanal," said Bill,

"and of the 200 men in my unit, only about 80 survived. Then after spending a few months in New Zealand getting replacements and bringing the outfit back up to full strength, we hit Tarawa. The Japanese had been telling everyone that Tarawa couldn't be taken in a thousand years, but we took it in 72 hours. We paid a really high price for that island, though. The tide was going out instead of in when we landed and most of us ended up in water over our heads. Bullets were flying everywhere and lots of really fine men never even made it to the shore."

Bill also saw action in a number of other famous Pacific Island battles, including Saipan and Tinian. In the process he received a battlefield promotion from private to sergeant, which in those days meant you had gone way beyond the call of duty while the fighting was at its worst.

"On Saipan I lost five men as soon as the landing craft door opened," said Bill, "but I was always sure that I was going to make it home. And once I did, I just decided to get on with my life and forget as best I could everything I had seen and done during the war."

Like my father, who also fought in the Pacific Theater during WWII and who is buried in the new National Cemetery in Dixon, Bill served his country as best he could and then got on with his life. And like all those over the years who have done — and continue to do — likewise, their service and sacrifice can never be forgotten, or appreciated enough.

SPORTS

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

I'm back from my short vacation to New York City last week and I just happened to be in Secaucus, New Jersey to witness the NBA's draft lottery where Kings Fan Margie Parilo represented the Kings organization in their 2008 draft lottery.

The local media flocked to interview Mrs. Parilo especially after the Maloof's public relation team whisked her around the Manhattan area treating her like a Hollywood celebrity while ignoring stars like Larry Bird, Mitch Richmond and music czar Jay-Z.

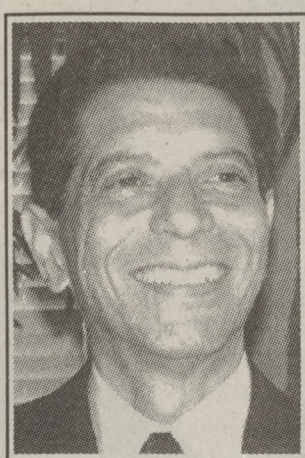

Unfortunately, the Kings ended up with the 12th pick in the upcoming draft while the Chicago Bulls were more fortunate, beating the odds and walking away from the lottery's top pick. The Kings still could end up selecting a player that can make a difference next season and also have two second round picks at No. 42 and 43.

Kings GM Geoff Petrie is famous for his picks having selected Spencer Hawes, Kevin Martin and Francisco Garcia in the previous lower rounds and is rumored to be interested in 19 year-old, 6'8" forward Nicolas Batum from the LeMans French team in the European league.

NBA Playoffs

The Lakers (2-1) and Spurs are locked up a fierce battle for the Western Conference title with the home teams winning again but in the Eastern Conference match up between Boston (2-2) and Detroit the visiting teams finally broke the stalemate with each team winning on the road.

I still like the Lakers to win the West because Game 7 is in Los Angeles and the Celtics are starting to play a little better but Ray Allen is the key for the "Boston Three Party". Allen finally broke out of his shooting slump scoring 25 points in their Game 2 loss but when back to shooting bricks scoring 11 points in Game 4 and only scored 9 points in the first playoff game. The Celtics and Lakers are the two best teams in their respective conferences so expect them both to win their series in seven games!

Diamond Notes

The Giants (20-31) continue to struggle winning games as they bring in new players from their farm system while the Oakland A's (28-23) stay close to the first-place Angels after sweeping the Boston Red Sox this Memorial weekend.

The A's recent road trip (2-7) was a disaster but their schedule looks pretty good with 21 of the next 30 games in Oakland. The only good news for Giants fans was Barry Zito didn't lose his last start.

The River Cats (32-19) had their five-game winning streak stopped by Tucson on Monday but overall the Gatos are playing well. Gatos slick shortstop Brooks Conrad has been on fire in Tucson slugging two home runs and racking up six RBI's.

The Cats will continue their long road trip and will return to the friendly confines of Raley Field on June 5th against Portland.

Between the Ropes

Local West Sacramento junior-welterweight Juan Lazcano traveled to Manchester, England over the Memorial Day weekend to fight local boxing champion Ricky Hatton for the IBO title in their soccer stadium before 55,000 fans.

The 33-year-old Lazcano (37-5-1, 27 KO's) went toe-to-toe for 12-rounds with the "British Bulldog" but the Englishmen was too strong for older Lazcano, winning a unanimous decision.

Tickets are selling like hotcakes to the World Extreme Cagefighting (WEC) lightweight championship match featuring local MMA star Urijah Faber and Jens Pulver. The WEC also has a bantamweight title fight between Mexican warriors Miguel Angel Torres and Manny Tapia, and the debut of Mark "The Filipino Wrecking Machine" Munoz. The 11 bout card is on Sunday, June 1st at 3:00 p.m. The Arco Arena has already sold over 10,000 tickets at prices between $186 and $37.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

Dolphins: gearing up to go fast, again

2008 marks the "18th" year of the West Sacramento Dolphins Swim Team. The Dolphins are a non-profit organization that has served the youth of West Sacramento since 1990.

From the West Sacramento Dolphins

The West Sacramento Dolphins Swim Team (WS Dolphins) is gearing up for another swim season. The WS Dolphins is a recreational swim program based in West Sacramento and is a member of the Eureka Conference of the Northern California Swim League. The coaching staff provides a program for swimmers ages 4 through 18, with all levels of swimming abilities. Many Dolphins move on to become seasoned members of the city's high school swim team. The club strives for a positive environment, hard work and team spirit to create a strong family atmosphere which lends itself to a winning tradition.

In the year 2002 the WS Dolphins, for the 1st time in the history of the team, came in first place. In 2003, the Dolphins came back to defend their Championships and for the 2nd year in a row, came in first place. In 2004, the WS Dolphins defended their Championships and took first in both dual meets and championships. In 2005, the WS Dolphins came in second in dual meets, and for the fourth year in a row, came in first at championships.

The West Sacramento Dolphins Swim Team is a non-profit swim team made possible by the cooperative effort between the city, parents, schools, local businesses and private donations.

The club is seeking support in the form of sponsorship from businesses and individuals. Your donations allow the team to purchase equipment and supplies. The team relies on food sales, fundraisers, grants and in-kind donations from within our community to help pay for coaching, lifeguard fees, insurance, league fees and computer equipment. Sponsorship is available at various levels in order to create an opportunity for all who wish to participate. All donations are tax deductible. "Fix I-5" Commute Options

Effective
June 2, 2008 -
July 14, 2008

Do you commute to Sacramento?

Are you concerned about the amount of traffic the "Fix I-5" project will create on I-80?
Leave the driving to us!

We will provide an extra bus in West Sacramento during peak hours to relieve local buses that run late due to crowds and heavy traffic conditions. If traffic conditions become too severe, we may need to cut the route 240, 42A and 42B short in downtown Sacramento, using 9th Street as the turnaround point, instead of 15th Street.

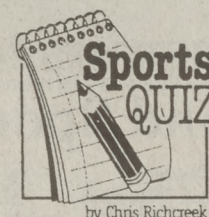

Route 39 (Commute Run Southport/Bridgeway)
To get into Sacramento, we will use either the 5th Street exit off of U.S. 50, or bring the route 39 buses over the Tower Bridge, depending on traffic conditions.
If we must use the Tower Bridge, the bus stop near the Embassy Suites will be the closest to the PERS building.

EXTENSION OF JITNEY SERVICE TAKEN UP AGAIN

At the request of the Washington Improvement Club a committee, consisting of E. A. Palm and P. A. Fitzgerald, called on C. W. McKillup, Superintendent of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, last Tuesday, asking that the question of extension of jitney service to Washington and Riverbank be taken up.

Mr. McKillup assured the committee that he would take the matter up with the corporation, but personally he could extend no hope for the extension, because at this writing the jitney service in Sacramento is far from being satisfactory either in a financial way or as a substitute for street car service.

When West Sacramento townsite was opened up this question was considered and a bonus was offered to make good any deficit that might occur through the service. The P. G. & E. could not see a chance to make a gain and hence the installation of the West Side Railroad, which still operates cars to West Sacramento headquarters.

Mr. McKillup assured the committee that he would be able to answer one way or the other before the next meeting of the club.

This question was brought up at the meeting of the Improvement Club on June 1st. One of those present asked the Chairman "What can be done to start things going in Washington in the most lively way?" One lady replied that she thought if street car service was supplied, following the installation of a gas supply, the advancement would be well on its way in a substantial manner.

The next meeting of the club will likely be able to return some satisfactory answer on this question.

MAY CONSOLIDATE SCHOOLS.

The first step taken for the consolidation of River View school, four miles south of Washington, with the Washington school, were taken last Friday when the trustees of both schools asked County Superintendent of Schools Harriet Lee for petition blanks calling for a special election for the purpose of voting on the question of consolidation. These petitions must be signed by a majority of the heads of families and the blanks must be completed and the election held before July 1st.

PREPARING FOR CON- CRETE ROAD ON LEVEE

According to the estimate of Asa G. Proctor, engineer of the district, the improvements will cost about $20,000. A clam shell dredge will be employed to do the work.

POPULATION OF WASHINGTON ESTIMATED AT 1500

In an effort to arrive at the exact population of the town of Washington, the Independent wrote Congressman C. F. Curry on May 11th, asking that as soon as the Census Bureau could secure it the figure be sent to this paper.

In reply Congressman Curry wrote under date of June 2d. House of Representatives, U. S. Washington, D. C. June 2, 1920.

P. A. Fitzgerald, Esq., The Independent, Broderick, Calif.

My Dear Mr. Fitzgerald:

When I received your favor of the 11th ult. in reference to the population of the town of Washington, Yolo County (Postoffice, Broderick) I took the matter up with the Director of the Census.

It has been impossible to secure the 1920 census report of the population of Washington, Calif., as the town is unincorporated and the Bureau does not compile the population statistics of unincorporated towns. The Director of the Census made an effort to secure the information you wished for me, but has been unable to do so.

I am very sorry that my letter does not contain more favorable information. With best wishes, believe me,

Sincerely yours,
C. F. CURRY.

Judging from the fact that at this writing there is not a vacant house in Washington, Riverbank or West Sacramento, it is estimated that the population of those three is fully 1500 people.

Later on the exact figure may be procured and as a request of this paper stands for an answer at the Census Bureau an answer may be expected soon.

In the first Supervisor District of Yolo County, that is the portion contiguous to Sacramento and immediately tributary thereto, the population is estimated at about 4500.

This population is composed mostly of home owners, farmers and a very prosperous class of people. These people do all their trading in Sacramento, going to Woodland, the county seat, only on rare occasions for legal business and for tax paying.

The business of this portion of Yolo County is transacted almost entirely in Sacramento.

It extends from Elk Horn to the southern extremity of the county and includes the rich district north of Washington, West Sacramento, the Lisbon District, the Holland Land Company, Clarksburg and a great stretch of very valuable land south of Clarksburg.

More families have been added every day to this district and a constant stream of trade is pouring into the capital city over the bridges that cross the river and the ferries that ply thereon.

TWO MORE STOCK INSPECTORS NAMED FOR YOLO COUNTY

The Department of Agriculture, Office of Cattle Protection, has appointed two additional inspectors to represent the Office of Cattle Protection in Yolo County, viz: L. J. Hoffman, Fifth and Beamer streets, Woodland, who is to take care of the inspections at Yolo, Woodland, Davis, Knights Landing and Merriets. E. B. Hart, Winters, is to take care of the inspections at Winters. Hoffman and Hart are succeeding L. W. Bryant, our former inspector at Yolo, who has resigned.

Cattle will not be accepted at any shipping point or by any common carrier unless a certificate of inspection, issued by the inspector is filed with the agent therefor at time of shipment. All cattle to be slaughtered must be inspected at the slaughterhouse by the inspector for marks and brands before the same can be slaughtered.

No person can engage in the slaughtering of cattle as a business before obtaining a license from the State and filing a bond in compliance with the law. Failure to do so renders the person so doing liable to fine and imprisonment and closes his slaughter house for a period of one year.

Bills of sale must be obtained when cattle are purchased and must be shown to the inspector. All cattle-men who intend to ship cattle and all slaughterers intending to slaughter cattle purchased by them must inform the inspector at least 24 hours before shipment or before cattle are slaughtered, by notifying the inspector nearest the shipping corral or slaughter house.

GORED TO DEATH BY VICIOUS BULL NEAR FREEPORT

John C. Yenger, a dairyman of Freeport, was gored to death early Wednesday by a bull. Yenger died before aid could reach him after the infuriated animal had pierced his abdomen.

The bull, known to be particularly dangerous, had been kept chained in a corral. At about 5 o'clock Wednesday morning Yenger, who has been a dairyman in the Freeport district for many years, discovered that the bull had broken loose, and gone to the pasture. He attempted to drive the animal back into the corral.

The bull attacked his owner and drove his horns into Yenger's body. Death came almost instantaneously. The body was taken charge of by Coroner John T. Skelton of Sacramento County.

Yenger leaves a widow and three small children. He was 50 years old and a native of Iowa.

PEAR CROP ESTIMATED AT 1500 TONS.

WOODLAND, June 2.—The Yolo County pear crop for 1920 was estimated at 1500 tons for a minimum yield this morning by County Horticultural Commissioner Wm. Gould in his report to the California Pear Growers' Association.

The normal crop runs about 2500 tons, but considering climatic conditions, the yield is more than expected by the growers. The largest orchard is the Rose orchard near Sacramento, on this side of the river. Here, the Bartlett crop will be almost up to normal, though the cost of maintaining this average will reduce the profit far below normal.

GUEST COMMENTARY

A bittersweet end to a teaching career

By Terry Luttrell

(Terry Luttrell is a longtime River City High School English teacher who is retiring from the Washington Unified School District this year. Below is the speech she made at her retirement dinner.)

It is with equal parts enthusiasm and trepidation that I face the upcoming challenge of retiring from WUSD. Teaching has defined who I am for many years.

I come from a family of teachers. My mother taught kindergarten for over 30 years. My dad started out teaching PE and woodshop and then climbed the management ladder until he was a superintendent. Two of my three sisters teach, as well as numerous cousins, uncles and aunts.

I, too, felt the calling. I enjoyed and excelled in English, majored in it, and began to teach in 1976. In the beginning I was full of all the wisdom a 21 year old college graduate possesses. Fresh ideas abounded from the 1970's education classes in which I'd been indoctrinated. Values clarification, character building, the teaching of actual literature in the form of books. Perhaps it was the result of all the ditto fluid I inhaled on a daily basis, but I felt that what I did in the classroom mattered. I was imparting important insights to these eager young minds.

And so went the first week of my teaching career.

Since then I have seen the pendulum of pedagogy swing with the predictable rhythm of rap music. Drill and kill. Discuss and contemplate. Direct instruction. Open classrooms. Cooperative learning. Critical thinking. The writing process. Whole language. Reading and skills strategies. And recently, the pendulum has come to rest solidly on test taking skills to assess the almighty California State Standards.

Unfortunately, the rewards of teaching are all too illusive. Too seldom have I received words of appreciation from a parent. My students' moments of sudden and clean comprehension (the light bulb going off) have been sporadic at best.

Teacher evaluations performed by administrators are all too often meaningless, perfunctory, or nonexistent. A few years ago my final evaluation for the year consisted of a thumbs up sign from the principal on the last day of school. Hardly constructive criticism or recognition for a job well done.

I've found that meaningful praise and support comes from colleagues. Friends who offer suggestions, materials, hope. Friends who listen to you whine. Those with whom you can comfortably confide that you really don't know what you're doing, or you absolutely hate teaching grammar. Fortunately, I have had an ample share of these people in my life.

Many of my contemporaries, veteran teachers who mentored me, are no longer working. In fact, I am now considered one of the veteran staff. And in wearing that label, there has been a clear sense that my views, my experience is to be dismissed and denigrated. That veteran teachers stand in the way of progress seems to be the mantra of many. Such misplaced vision is disheartening and demoralizing. I urge district administrators to find a way to embrace the experience and expertise of veteran educators and build from it, moving the district forward with the guidance of those who came before.

It has been a difficult decision to retire from teaching. It's hard to gauge when to leave. I have yet to hide under my desk crying, but I've grown weary of nagging students to be quiet and do their work. I've grown weary of being engulfed by the apathy that oozes from many kids who seem only intent on perfecting their ability to be a lump. I've grown weary and angry of having my opinions and knowledge be discounted, of feeling like the old dog surrounded by puppies on which all eyes fall.

There are things I will not miss: teaching grammar (lay, lie, lain?); the inane and constant bantering of students accompanied by weird animal noises, tapping on desks, and whistling sounds; the infinite array of acronyms that crop

Letters to the Editor—

“Gotcha games”

I find it rather contradictory that Mayor Christopher Cabaldon should cry “foul” when those at odds with his candidacy for State Assembly bring to light several deprecatory issues about his personal life. He insisted, according to an article in the Sacramento Bee the revelations of his failure to pay parking tickets issued to his automobile and his delinquency on paying “vessel taxes” for his 21-foot-long Regal boat were nothing more than “gotcha games”.

To me, what I hear Mr. Cabaldon saying is “...do as I say, not as I do.”

In the last two elections as a candidate for mayor of West Sacramento, his campaign has sent out last-minute scathing letters to the electorate disdainful to his opponents. Each mailing was filled with almost slanderous innuendoes and personal attacks on those not hand-picked by him for various city positions or those running against his personal candidacy.

It's a well-known secret that Mr. Cabaldon is not a “full time resident” of West Sacramento. In his defense, I'm sure, what with his sporadic visits to his “official residence”, mail, along with other home deliveries, does pile up. With his hectic schedule, just sorting through the junk mail would take up valuable time. Plus, there is yard work to do...I'm just going to skip that one.

Mayor Cabaldon has certainly been involved in our city government during a tremendous growth cycle. There is little doubt that he has worked hard to move our little city in the direction he personally envisioned. Did he please some folks? The answer is “You bet”. Did he offend others? Ditto to the first question's answer. Is our city better off now than before Mr. Cabaldon began serving the public trust, doing the public's business? We all must answer that ourselves as to whether he is the person to continue his quest of higher public office.

However, to claim to be insulted by underhanded techniques exploring his personal improprieties, and referring to them as “gotcha games”, that is what I find ironic.

Really good service!

I would like to share an experience I had yesterday that was the likes of nothing that has ever happened to me before, and I am 68 years old.

I walked the two or so blocks from my home to the new Nugget Market on Jefferson Boulevard with my pull-cart to bring home my groceries. Well, as usual, I bought more than the cart would hold, and was wondering how to get the cart and three bags home, when a wonderful clerk named Tiffany got on the phone and spoke to her supervisor and then stated to me that she would drive me home. Not only did she drive me home in her own car, but she also unloaded all my groceries, and I am sure I will be doing a lot of my shopping at a market that has people like Tiffany working there.

West Sacramento just gets better all the time and I've been here since 1958.

I-5 diving line

This state, California, does not really have a North-South political problem, as has been perpetually promulgated in the past, as a reason to split the state into two or three different politically autonomous entities. Rather, I believe, we have an East-West problem between the far left tilt of the “left coast” and the rest of the state (just check your handy-dandy red/blue political maps for edification). I suggest I-5 as the appropriate dividing line.

You may want to reflect on my forgoing suggestion this coming Friday, May 30th — traditional Memorial Day — as you pause to reflect on those who've given their lives in order for you to celebrate your freedom to enjoy your three-day weekend on the nearest handy Monday.

Should have paid the tickets

As a West Sacramento Democrat, one has to wonder why Mayor Cabaldon didn't pay his first ticket. Instead, it took nine tickets before he corrected his irresponsible attitude. How will the voters react to this kind of behavior on June 3rd? He won't get my vote.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING TO DETERMINE THE SCOPE OF A DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT FOR THE PROPOSED STONE LOCK PROJECT

The City of West Sacramento will hold a scoping meeting for the proposed Stone Lock project (Proposed Project) pursuant to CEQA Guidelines 15082. The purpose of the scoping meeting is to solicit input from agencies, organizations, and individuals to assist the lead agency in determining the scope and content of the Draft Environmental Impact Report (Draft EIR). Persons may attend either meeting.

SCOPING MEETING INFORMATION:

Date: Thursday, June 5, 2008 Times: 4:00-5:00 p.m., or until the last speaker is heard

6:00-7:00 p.m., or until the last speaker is heard

Location: West Sacramento Civic Center – Galleria Room 157, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, CA 95691

PROJECT DESCRIPTION:

The concept plan divides the project site into four distinct but interconnected urban districts: 1) the Park District; 2) the Bluff District; 3) the Canal District; and 4) the Barge District. The Stone Lock project also includes over 60 acres of open space, with a prominent waterfront public park, trails, community greens, and open space corridors that connect the districts and the waterfront to existing, adjacent neighborhoods, parks trails and corridors. Each of the districts includes a mix of uses which have been planned as urban, pedestrian-scaled villages where residential uses, shopping services, recreational opportunities and civic uses are within walking distance consistent with the Southport Framework Plan. A network of pedestrian-scaled, tree-lined streets, avenues, and boulevards is planned for efficient automobile circulation and improved connectivity to and from Jefferson Boulevard and South River Road which the City plans to extend south by a new bridge as part of a separate project. Proposed uses for each of the districts are summarized below:

The Park District is approximately 120 acres and would include 1,500 housing units, 550,000 square feet of office uses, 150,000 square feet of retail and service uses, and up to 250 hotel rooms. A diverse mix of housing types and densities are proposed to serve as a transition from existing adjacent neighborhoods to the water's edge. A central neighborhood green is proposed to provide a unique identity, open space and recreational uses, and community space for neighborhood events. Pedestrian and bicycle trails, sidewalks, and open space corridors would connect the neighborhood green and the Park District to adjacent neighborhood parks to the east and south.

The Bluff District is approximately 20 acres and would include 350 housing units, 700,000 square feet of office, 100,000 square feet of retail, and a 400-room hotel with conference and meeting space. Open space trails would link the Bluff District to other districts and to the city's planned riverfront park and trail system.

The Canal District is approximately 50 acres centered around the existing William G. Stone Lock, recognizing the important historic and industrial vestige of the site. Proposed development in this area would include 350 housing units, 450,000 square feet of office, 625,000 square feet of retail, and a 150-room hotel. On both sides of the canal, mixed-use buildings with offices and loft-style housing above shops, restaurants, and sidewalk cafes would line wide pedestrian promenades that link to other trails, parks and districts. The Canal District is envisioned as a place where events, performances, and evening entertainment would take place within an active, pedestrian-oriented retail environment.

The Barge District is approximately 30 acres and would include 300 residential units, 15,000 square feet of retail and/or restaurant space, and an aquatic and rowing center. The aquatic center is proposed at the far west or far east end of the district, offering access to the waterfront for rowing clubs, recreational boaters, and visitors. Setbacks between buildings and the waterfront would enable a wide, linear open space linking pedestrian and bicycle trails to other districts, to the waterfront, and to the city's planned riverfront park and trail system.

PROJECT SITE: The project site is located in the City of West Sacramento, Yolo County, California. The proposed project is located on multiple, publicly-owned properties located along the Sacramento River to the north and south of the Barge Canal. The site is approximately 220 acres and includes over four miles of water frontage, with areas adjacent to the canal from Lake Washington Boulevard to the Sacramento River. The site also encompasses the area generally bounded by South River Road, Stonegate Drive, and Hearst Street. The project site is bordered on the south and west sides by single family and multi-family neighborhoods, to the north by industrial properties, and to the east by the Sacramento River.

PUBLIC REVIEW PERIOD: The comment period for the Notice of Preparation began on Monday, May 19, 2008 and will run through June 20, 2008. Please provide all written comments concerning the content and scope of the Program EIR to the following address by 5:00 p.m. on Friday, June 20, 2008.

CRITIC'S CORNER

By D.N.A. Smith

"Iron Man"

Running time: 126 minutes
 MPAA rating: PG-13

Who'da thunk that a movie based on a second-tier comic-book hero would be the first super-hit of the year?

I was looking forward to seeing "Iron Man," but I didn't expect to be as blown away by the movie as I — and the rest of America — was.

"Iron Man" is the best film of the year, and credit is due to three major factors:

1. Robert Downey Jr. He was born to play the jaded, booze-swilling, phillandering Tony Stark. Downey's performance carries the film — especially during those long stretches where there isn't any action.

2. Jon Favreau. Sure, he's the guy who directed "Elf," and most fanboys had serious misgivings about Favreau being onboard as director, but he did everything right. He consulted fans online during the production process, the same way Peter Jackson made Tolkien fans an integral part of the preproduction of "The Lord of the Rings." By consulting with the fans, Favreau made certain he pleased not only non-comics fans, but the core audience of fanboys who will be watching the film several times at the theater and buying the majority of the merchandise.

3. Marvel Comics. "Iron Man" is the first Marvel property to be produced by the comic-book publisher's film-production company. It's about time comic-book publishers took control of their work instead of trusting Hollywood to treat their characters with respect.

The plot of the film is pretty straightforward. Super-wealthy arms manufacturer Tony Stark (Downey) is captured by terrorists. He creates a suit of iron to escape.

He discovers that his weapons have been sold to terrorists for years behind his back. So, he creates an even more powerful suit — becoming Iron Man — in order to combat terrorism and make penance for being a man who has made billions from suffering and destruction.

Stark also has to solve the mystery of who in his company has been selling the weapons to the terrorists — not only because of the moral implications, but also because the traitor is trying to kill Stark.

"Iron Man" is well worth seeing — more than once. It's a rollercoaster ride of great action, fun performances and perhaps the best comic-book movie yet made.

Luck: The Essential Guide

By Deborah Aaronson and Kevin Kwan
 (Collins, $19.95)

Reviewed by Katy Olson

Ever wonder why black cats foretell misfortune, while spiders are to be spared? Or why spilling milk spells trouble, but dropping a fork does not? Even if you're about as lucky as a peacock in a theater (which is to say, not very), Deborah Aaronson and Kevin Kwan's "Luck: The Essential Guide" will reveal the fortuitous trinkets, tricks and traditions that can convert your kismet.

From the conventional (donning a horseshoe charm) to the unusual (many Japanese prefer a "golden poo" bauble), "Luck" is a comprehensive compendium of all things lucky. In addition to feng shui tips, dining etiquette and recipes, "Luck" includes a catalog of fortune-filled destinations — like the Wat Po Temple of the Reclining Buddha in Bangkok and the Trevi Fountain in Rome — that are bound to bring luck to all who visit.

Most handy are the tips for creating your own luck and remedying the bad. Whether you're choosing the best location for a tattoo or deciding when to try a new hairstyle (make that appointment on a Monday, and never on a Sunday!), this compelling chronicle distills age-old traditions into modern advice that's applicable everywhere from the market to the casino.

Deciding between garlic and parsley? Stick with the former, as propitious people from the ancient Romans and Egyptians to contemporary Spaniards extol garlic for its curative properties, while the latter signifies death and nearly guarantees ill fortune. Hitting the blackjack table? Wear auspicious red underwear, or try rubbing the dice on a red-headed bystander (if you're shy you can just carry dice in your pocket for similar results).

Gorgeously designed, you can knock on the "wooden" cover of this book, or pass it along to a less-fortunate friend. And maybe next time you'll think twice before swatting away that lucky little spider!

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

On June 3, 1800, President John Adams becomes the first acting president to take up residence in Washington, D.C. Unfortunately, the White House was not yet finished, so Adams moved into temporary digs at a tavern called Tunicliffe's City Hotel.

On June 2, 1912, Carl Laemmle merges his movie studio with several others, creating Hollywood's first major studio, Universal. The studio's major box-office hits have included "American Graffiti," "Jaws," "E.T." and "Jurassic Park."

On June 5, 1949, bestselling thriller writer Ken Follett is born in Wales to a devout Christian family that does not allow television, radio or movies. As a result, Follett became a voracious reader. He wrote 10 novels before finally breaking through with "The Eye of the Needle."

Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS

by Steven Austin

You collect penguin-related items. What if you traveled to an exotic land and there was a penguin dish on the menu ... would you try it?

"If I ever saw that a restaurant served penguin I would ask the manager to bring me all of the live penguins and would proceed to buy them and set them free."

Ever have a dining experience that was so bad, you wish you could have dragged the place's owner into court right at that moment?

"I do not eat asparagus, and when ordering I make sure that asparagus is not a hundred feet near my plate. I was at a fancy restaurant and on the plate they served asparagus, which was not on the menu. Not only did they serve it, but it was on top of the veal chop. When I asked them to remove the asparagus, they gave me a hard time — even threatening to charge me for it. If it's not listed, don't serve it! And that's my final ruling."

Favorite snacks to keep in your chambers.

"My favorite snacks in chambers are my 'Weight Watcher' cakes and chocolate and oat 'Fiber One' chewy bars."

Judge David Young

Quick-witted comments, creative sentences and occasional bursts of song are all part of the daily case load on the Emmy-nominated TV hit "Judge David Young." Young first captured the nation's attention during a high-profile case in May 2005, when he sentenced two America West airline pilots to jail for attempting to operate a plane while intoxicated. A one-time law clerk for renowned attorney F. Lee Bailey, assistant state attorney in Florida under Janet Reno and a former county circuit court judge, Young is known as a tough but fair judge who also has a robust sense of humor, which he taps frequently from the bench. He lives in Miami, Fla. Go to www.judgetdavidyoung.com or check your local listings for show times.

You sentenced those America West pilots for attempting to operate a plane while being intoxicated. Any other wild courtroom tales that involved drinking or eating?

"There were these two college students charged with stealing a table outside of the restaurant Johnny Rockets. When I inquired to why they did that — after they pled guilty — the boys told me they were drunk. To which I responded, 'I hope so!'" dark brown, white and black. He is described as long-haired, older, overweight, and wearing a collar.

The dog's owner was described as a Caucasian man in his mid-40s, unshaven but with no beard or moustache. He was wearing blue jeans, a white tank top, black leather vest, black fingerless gloves, black sunglasses and a black hat.

TEACHER from p. 7

up with every wave of policy change: IUSP, ESLRS, API, ESL, ECL, ELL.

I will not miss rudeness, meanness, the sense of entitlement many students seem to carry with them at all times. I will not miss the endless parade of administrators who are growing younger and younger each year. I will not miss "professional development", previously known as inservice days.

I know I have many good lessons left in me, that I'm improving my craft. I still delight in the connections I make with kids, in the teasing way we build mutual respect, in the goofy things students say.

I will miss many things: my paycheck, medical insurance for my daughter, showing the miniseries "Roots" to my Advanced ESL class; the relaxed comfort of my first period class; working with WTA; my cool new projector machine which can zoom in on documents; the sound of the classroom when the kids are quiet, and when the kids are gone. And I will miss referring to students as "my boy" or "my girl" as if they were my very own.

So it is, in 21 days, I will say goodbye to a career of 32 years. I look forward to new opportunities before, spending time with my family, taking care of myself, doing a bit of writing, and sleeping in whenever possible. I am proud to say that I am, and have been, a teacher.
